

2. Considering the averments in the civil application and the order on the original petition, all that can be directed is that the applicant should be impleaded as party respondent to the petition. The request of the applicant to stay the order passed by this Court on 9th

December 2005 cannot be acceded to as this Court has yet to go into the legality and validity of the action of authorities under Bombay Prohibition Act, 1949. Request in that behalf for interim orders in terms of the civil application is, therefore, rejected.

3. This order does not prevent the applicant from adopting appropriate proceedings in the Civil Court.
